

Intelligence as a Service

In today's ever-changing risk landscape, security professionals from organizations large or small have limited time to monitor, assess and manage all of the threats to their people, property and operations. That's why G4S launched its Intelligence as a Service offering, which pairs the skills and knowledge of elite analysts with a powerful, AI-augmented intelligence platform that enables security leaders to respond to critical events in real time and reduce risk across their organizations.

G4S Intelligence as a Service can be delivered virtually via the G4S Risk Operations Center (ROC) or through an embedded analyst at your organization to deliver global intelligence reporting, travel risk management assistance, near-real-time notifications to client employees, travelers and assets to keep their operations secure.

G4S' elite analysts use an AI-powered Critical Event Intelligence platform, which filters more than 15,000 trusted data sources across government, weather and geological, local and international, social media and other external data sources into a single feed that provides dedicated tracking of client resources on a global scale.

Service Features

Virtual analysts can support client remotely or analysts can be embedded at a client site

Global impact analysis on major events and crises as it pertains to customer's critical assets

Suite of on-demand, customized reporting services, including travel risk, protective intelligence, country risk assessments, daily situation/critical event reports

Social media monitoring and analysis

Due-diligence investigations on individuals or organizations using desktop and field sources

